What happens if my work is accepted?

Upon acceptance, a contract for exhibition must be filled out. The Taube Museum will need the following at least two months prior to the exhibit: Updated artist biography, artist statement, a typed copy of an actual image inventory sheet listing title, size, media, price or value if not for sale and 3-5 high quality digital images (pdf, jpeg, png) for publicity. Packing, shipping and insurance costs to and from the exhibition site will be incurred by the exhibitor.

Artwork must be ready to install, suitably wired and framed. If presentation is not suitable, the Taube Museum of Art will refurbish artwork at the exhibitor's expense. Artwork included in the exhibition must not differ stylistically from the proposed images used for the selection process.

Appropriate shipping crates and packing materials must be used. Crates must fit through a standard door, no more than 28" wide and weigh less than 100 pounds. If shipping materials are not suitable, the Taube Museum of Art will replace them at the exhibitor's expense.

The Taube Museum of Art will provide onsite insurance, publicity, a public reception, installation, and an opportunity for sales. The standard Taube Museum of Art commission is 30% for organizations members, and 40% for non-members.
