

Museum History

The Lillian & Coleman Taube Museum of Art, is a public, non-profit, membership driven organization. The Minot Art Association, which was the founding organization, opened the Minot Art Gallery in 1970 by a group of patrons with the intent of creating an art gallery.

In 1997 the organization achieved their goal of securing a permanent location and the Minot Art Gallery, now the Lillian and Coleman Taube Museum of Art, moved to the historically renovated Union National Bank building located at 2 North Main.
